

David C. Flatto received a B.A. and Ordination from Yeshiva University, a J.D. from Columbia Law School, and a Ph.D. with distinction from the Department of Near Eastern Languages and Civilizations at Harvard University. He is a professor of law and Jewish thought at Hebrew University. He was previously a professor of law and religion at Penn State University, and a visiting professor and lecturer at Penn Law School, NYU Law School and Yeshiva University. He has also served as a fellow at NYU Law, Tikvah Center, and a visiting researcher at Yale Law School.

His research interests include Jewish law, Jewish thought, constitutional law and theory, and comparative jurisprudence. His works have appeared in numerous publications including Harvard Theological Review, Yale Journal of Law and Humanities, Yale Law Journal Pocket Part, Journal of Law and Religion, Dine Israel, Hebraic Political Studies and AJS Review. He is the author of The Crown and the Courts: Separation of Powers in the Early Jewish Imagination (Harvard University Press, 2020), and the co-editor of a forthcoming volume entitled, Law as Religion, Religion as Law (Cambridge University Press, 2021).